

The University of Western Sydney
2015 School of Law Public Seminar Series
The School of Law, together with the School of Medicine, invite you to attend a free public seminar:

LAW AND THE END OF LIFE

Thursday 23 April

5:45 pm – 7:00 pm

University of Western Sydney, Campbelltown Campus, Goldsmith Avenue, Campbelltown, Conference Room 5, Building 22

Speakers

Dr Kristen Turner, FACHPM

Professor Cameron Stewart, University of Sydney

Professor Steven Freeland, University of Western Sydney

Mr Trevor Khan, MLC

About the Seminar

We are concerned more than ever to preserve the dignity and autonomy of the individual at the end of life. But what does that mean, in a context where resources are becoming scarcer and our population is increasing and ageing? This seminar brings together leading thinkers from the fields of law, medicine, human rights and politics, to explore some of the complexities that surround end-of-life decision-making. We invite the public, members of the legal and medical professions and the staff and students of the University of Western Sydney, to join in an important conversation which has relevance for us all.

About the Speakers

Dr Kristen Turner is a Palliative Medicine specialist with South Western Sydney Local Health District, with 3 decades experience in practicing end-of-life medicine.”

Professor Cameron Stewart is Pro Dean at Sydney Law School and recognised as one of the leading legal scholars in the area of medicine, law and ethics.

Professor Steven Freeland is Professor of International Law at the University of Western Sydney and formerly a Visiting Professional at the International Criminal Court.

Mr Trevor Khan has been a member of the NSW Legislative Council since March 2007. He is also a lawyer. His personal and political reflections on law and the end-of-life have recently stimulated significant public debate around end-of-life issues.

Inquiries: Dr Catherine Renshaw, School of Law, University of Western Sydney

c.renshaw@uws.edu.au