MESSAGE FROM THE PETER BRENNAN CHAIR OF GENERAL PRACTICE

Dear Colleagues,

Again it is time to pause and reflect with all our valued collaborators on another year of rewards and achievements.

This year's increased student numbers provided Heidi and Melinda with some pre-rotation anxiety! However our committed and expert GP Supervisors and their practice teams came to the fore and all students were accommodated and returned to us singing praises of "my" GP Supervisor!

You will see the outcomes of your hard work in the excerpt from the Year 5 Student magazine showing 24% of final year students interested in pursuing a career in General Practice!

Our particular thanks to Drs McCroary, Lim and all the way from Tenterfield, Dr Harvey, who accommodated students for remediation terms in December. (We do have the very occasional student who does not perform outstandingly first time!) Thanks also to Dr Ross Wilson who shares some of his insights and experiences in this newsletter.

You will see that our team is again on the expand and we are looking forward to having Pennys A and B joining Nick and Lawrence, who have been holding the fort since Wendy's change in role. Georgia has been an enthusiastic and capable assistant to Melinda and we are very pleased to welcome Kelly Watts—our academic GP Registrar from WentWest.

We have celebrated the success of our GP colleagues at Alstonville and Hazelbrook in winning RACGP awards and are grateful that our students experience general practice of the calibre exhibited by these outstanding GPs.

Our students also have shone and thanks to the generosity of donors, Dr Anna Pham, Wollondilly Shire Council and Primary Health Care, three students were awarded GP prizes this year. UWS GPSN students have enthusiastically promoted General Practice as a career, organising a suite of student events this year.

We aim always to improve our teaching and so will be introducing mentoring for Year 3 students in 2012. We are keen to hear from readers interested in this opportunity and will be emailing details in the new year. We have also revised our PiP processes in Year 3 to align with those in Year 5—see page 3 for more information.

In the past few months we have been delighted to receive two substantial new research grants which will enable us to address key GP teaching and clinical questions related to Aboriginal health.

We will be leading a $1.64m NHMRC Project grant investigating best management of acute otitis media in urban Aboriginal children, a population for which there is little evidence to inform practice. A successful tender to Australian General Practice Training will also enable us to better understand roles of Cultural Educators and Mentors in GP training.

Meanwhile Ron, Penny and Lawrence are leading a range of other research projects some of which you will find described in this newsletter.

Thank you once again for your generous support. Without our wider team these achievements would not have been possible.

Best wishes for a safe and happy Christmas and a rewarding New Year!

Jenny Reath

Happy Christmas and Best Wishes for 2013

DEPARTMENT UPDATES

WELCOME

Following an extensive advertising process we are very pleased to welcome two new Senior Lecturers to our Department. Dr Penny Abbott, our present GP Research Fellow, is well known for her work in assisting GP researchers and medical students undertaking research. Penny has also rolled out a number of research projects in the Department largely focussed around her interest areas of Aboriginal health and Justice Health. Penny continues to work as a clinician in these areas and will have a key role in our new NHMRC research project.

Dr Penny Burns joins us from her role as a GP Fellow with the Disaster Response and Resilience Research Group at UWS. Penny has an exciting life implementing and researching disaster relief programs here in Australia as well as in China and PNG. She has also coordinated the development of the Surveillance and Disaster Planning Unit in the Masters of Public Health since its inception in 2009 and continues to work as a GP in a busy family practice in Rozelle.

The GP Dept. is very pleased to introduce you to Georgia Millen, who stepped into the Administrative Assistant role in early September. Georgia has a background in allied health administration and customer service. Georgia transitioned very quickly into the University and GP Dept. environment. She has implemented improvements to the PiP administrative process and is currently doing a fantastic job, coordinating the Year 5 2013 Conference Week. She is a great communicator and a deft hand at event organisation.

Kelly Watt will be joining the Department in January as an academic registrar and we are very much looking forward to her arrival! She will be working on a project 'Cross cultural training of GP registrars – Who is responsible? Assessing the perceptions and training needs of GP Supervisors in Western Sydney.' She will be using a qualitative approach to explore GP supervisors' views on how they work with registrars to enable them to consult more effectively with patients from diverse cultural backgrounds, in particular Aboriginal patients. Kelly already has a Masters of International Health and brings a strong interest in the area of cultural competence to our department. She will also be gaining experience in undergraduate teaching.

2012 RACGP GENERAL PRACTITIONER OF THE YEAR AND NSW PRACTICE OF THE YEAR

We know at UWS that we have the BEST GP Supervisors and teaching General Practices and this was confirmed at GP12, the 2012 annual RACGP convention.

Dr Tony Lembke, who takes our students in his practice in Alstonville, was awarded the 2012 RACGP General Practitioner of the Year! Dr Lembke is quoted on the RACGP website as saying "I am a strong believer in the concept of a 'medical home' whereby each patient receives ongoing, comprehensive patient care via the same GP or practice over time. This model, however, can only work if we have a highly trained, engaged general practice profession – which is why I place great importance on supporting the next generation of GPs as they come through the system".

The Hazelbrook General Practice, a valued UWS teaching practice, received well-deserved recognition as RACGP NSW General Practice of the Year. In the words of Dr Guan Yeo, Chair of the NSW/ACT Faculty: "Hazelbrook General Practice is a fantastic example of how primary healthcare should be delivered in the community – through a holistic approach based around collaborative care, where the GP remains at the heart of care coordination".

Congratulations to Tony and the Hazelbrook team and thanks to all our exceptional GP teachers!

FIVE MINUTES WITH DR ROSS WILSON

Dr Ross Wilson is a rural GP with over 30 years of medical experience. Dr Wilson is recognised as one of the finest amongst his profession, being named Australian GP of the year by the RACGP back in 2003 whilst also working as a medical educator overseeing GP registrars. Dr Wilson who has been supervising UWS students for the past 2 1/2 years, talked with Dr Lawrence Tan about his time as a GP.

Ross, how did you first become involved in rural general practice?

It's something I was always going to do. When I was a student I spent some time with a rural GP who was also an orthopaedic surgeon in Kyogle. He took over his father's practice and showed me how it could be a great life. When I was let out of University, I went to Royal North Shore. I did two terms in Casualty because I thought it was important, worked on the professorial surgical unit, then did an ENT/eye term, where I learnt to do tonsillectomies. This was followed by a term in general/ chest medicine. They were just starting a GP stream then and asked me to join, but I was already committed to doing obstetrics in Scotland. I also did anaesthetics in Surrey. I was going to join a practice in the United Kingdom but got talked out of it and went to try rural general practice in Australia. I was a senior resident at Orange Base hospital and was asked to join a practice there, where I stayed for 2 years. However, I could see procedural general practice was to become limited because of all the specialists moving in, so I went to work in Corowa in a 4-man group practice for 10 years. After that, my kids were wanting to do something other than farming and metal work so we moved to Bathurst where there were more facilities for their education. So I've been doing procedural general practice there for over 20 years now, which is 37 years in general practice altogether. I also did a Diploma of Community Child Health in the UK when my wife was doing neonatal ICU there. I did a Diploma of Child Health by correspondence, became a lactation consultant, and did various emergency courses including EMS, ALS, APLS, pre-hospital emergency care, and a Care Flight course.

Is there anything you dislike about General Practice? Anything that irritates or discourages you?

No, not really. Well, maybe the government interference, and the paperwork.

So what keeps you going in General Practice?

The people. And the challenge. You can never be too clever.

How do you see the future of General Practice?

It will always be what people make of it. You have to remember to be flexible, keep interested, and keep learning. There will always be a niche, a place for you and what you're interested in. General practice will need to adapt to an ageing population and the complex care that involves, but that needn't be your main focus. You could have a paediatric focus, you can always do what you like—that's the beauty of General Practice. No-one's going to stop you. There's a collegial spirit about General Practice.

Do you have a word for our readers?

Celebrate what's diverse about General Practice. Admire those who walk to a different drum. I applaud other GPs who are interested in women's health, psychological aspects, palliative care. Those are parts of my practice but not my cup of tea. I admire those who do it and love it.

AUSTRALIAN HEALTH INFORMATICS SUMMER SCHOOL

The University of Western Sydney will play host to the third annual Health Informatics "Summer School". This years Summer School will consist of a series of short courses from 4th-8th February 2013, addressing the numerous changes brought about by Health Informatics (eHealth).

Each short course will run as a full day comprehensive classroom or workshop style session, which will be delivered by a team of invited national experts and UWS Health Informatics staff.

Each daily course topic in the Summer School will be delivered in two parts: a morning session that will be at a introductory level, followed later by afternoon sessions at a more advanced level.

These short courses are aimed at clinical professionals such as doctors and nurses, healthcare administrators and support personnel.

For more information on topics or if you wish to register your interest please visit <http://www.uws.edu.au/scem/hisummerschool> or alternatively send your expression of interest and any enquiries via email to hisummerschool@scem.uws.edu.au.

NEWS OF OUR STUDENTS

It's official. Our GP Supervisors' passion for General Practice is highly contagious! The graphic you see above from the Graduate Yearbook Class of 2012 "What specialty are your considering" indicates a clear majority 24% of our graduates are considering a career in Primary Health Care.

The high quality teaching experience our students have the opportunity to undertake whilst on attachment with our GP partners is clearly influencing and encouraging our students to follow this path in their medical careers. We are so grateful for your contributions to our students' learning and development and wish to extend a heart-felt thank you to the wonderful work you do throughout the year.

GENERAL PRACTICE PRIZE WINNERS 2012

It was a bittersweet day for the year 5 UWS medical students as they gathered for the last time as undergraduates in the lecture theatre on December 7th. The occasion was the School of Medicine Prize Ceremony for graduating students. All the students had worked hard and made many sacrifices, but this ceremony recognised those who had excelled in various fields including Paediatrics, Psychiatry, Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Oncology, Medicine and Surgery, overall Academic Achievement, and for Personal and Professional Development and Leadership. Two prizes were awarded for outstanding performance in General Practice. The recipients were Cassandra Brown and Shankar Kumarasiri, respectively, who had achieved equal top score in their assessments at the end of their GP placements. Cassandra had been placed in the Wetherill Park Medical Centre and Shankar in Bridgeview Medical Practice, Toongabbie. Both of them are very appreciative of the quality teaching they had received from their GP supervisors, and grateful for the generous support from the prize donors. They are looking forward to commencing their internship at Blacktown Hospital, with a view to possible GP training in the future

Dr Lawrence Tan with Shankar Kumarasiri

GP 12 PRESENTATIONS

Year four UWS Medical students Betsy Dang, Nimna De Silva and Anthony Huynh, from the University of Western Sydney where chosen to present a short paper at this years RACGP Conference for General Practice. The group used a qualitative study design to describe the perspectives and experiences of GPs providing antenatal shared care in Greater Western Sydney. The study was conducted in collaboration with Professor Virginia Schmied (UWS) and will help contribute towards the national Child Health Researching Universal Services (CHoRUS) study: A Study Investigating the Feasibility of Implementing a National Approach to Child and Family Health Services.

Dr Michael Burke along with students Hannah Hu, Shivani Patel, Kogulan Sriranjjan, Daniel Yang and Andrew Melito presented a poster during GP12. The poster titled Review of the Understanding and Utilisation of Care Plans, was well received by those attending GP12.

A big congratulations to all that participated!

UWS STUDENTS WIN GP SYNERGY SCHOLARSHIPS

The Department of General Practice was very pleased by the enthusiastic response of our UWS medical students in applying for two GP Synergy Scholarships offered to each of their regional universities. This program aims to develop the research capacity of students by providing financial and supervisory support over a 12 month period. In this first round of scholarships the two successful applicants were Emma Kozianski and William Wang. They will commence research projects, working with Ron Brooker on a Mental Health consumer advocacy project with Nepean Blue Mountains Medicare Local and with Penny Abbott continuing her work on GP Supervisor Cultural Awareness training.

Congratulations to William and Emma and to the 10 other UWS students who put in applications for this scholarship. One of these students, Nimna De Silva, will be working in her own time, assisting Ron with research into mental health needs in the Airds-Bradbury area.

STUDENT WELLBEING DAYS

On Tuesday 16th of October and Wednesday 17th of October at lunchtime the General Practice Student Network (GPSN) held Wellbeing Days for 1st and 2nd year students about to sit their exams. On Tuesday our new Senior Lecturer, Dr. Penny Burns spoke inspiringly about the key role of General Practitioners during disaster recovery. Her talk also included tips on managing stress and the importance of having a proper balance between study and relaxation. She emphasised the need for an adequate sleep regime, especially during examination periods. The following day Dr. Chee Khoo, a Department of General Practice Conjoint, spoke realistically about practical methods of surviving medical school and how he manages to balance an extremely full professional life with an impressive fitness regime and spending enjoyable and fulfilling time with his family. Both speakers were enthusiastically welcomed and thanked for their interesting talks.

Many thanks to our active GPSN for all their work promoting General Practice to our students!

WOLLONDILLY SHIRE COUNCIL PRIZE FOR MEDICINE IN CONTEXT

This prize worth $1,000 is awarded to a Year 3 Medicine in Context student, demonstrating local leadership, community advocacy, teamwork and responsiveness to health inequalities. Ayesha Siriwardena who undertook her GP placements with Dr Robert Elliot and Dr Michael Fasher, achieved the top grade in the 2012 MiC assessments and is a worthy inaugural recipient of this award.

APPLY NOW: GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN ALLERGIC DISEASES

The Graduate Certificate in Allergic Diseases is designed for medical practitioners, particularly general practitioners and general paediatricians, who want to improve their care of patients with allergic diseases. Students must be registered medical practitioners. It combines an introduction to the scientific basis of allergic diseases and clinical aspects of allergy. ## RESEARCH AND COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Patients are beginning to take photos or even video footage on their phones to show their GPs during medical consultations. If this hasn't happened to you yet, it is bound to happen soon.

The Department of General Practice at UWS is conducting research on this exciting and emerging use of new technology by patients to enhance their communication with their doctors. We wish to further explore GP views and experiences with the use of camera phone images in consultations.

If you are interested in participating in this research, please contact Lawrence Tan via email l.tan@uws.edu.au. This would involve a brief telephone interview at a time convenient to you. Any assistance would be gratefully appreciated!

STUDENT, STAFF AND SUPERVISOR AWARENESS AND UNDERSTANDING OF HUMAN RESEARCH ETHICS

Professor Wendy Hu who is now the Head of the Medical Education Unit, and Ron Brooker (Research Officer, Department of General Practice) are currently advancing a collaboration study with the Graduate School of Medicine, University of Wollongong, that is investigating the awareness of human ethics by medical students, staff and clinicians. Various scenarios are described and participants are asked their views about the most ethical practices that researchers should adopt. Both the University of Western Sydney and University of Wollongong are at the data collection stage of this project.

REVIEW OF MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES FOR RESIDENTS OF THE AIRDS BRADBURY HOUSING RENEWAL PROJECT

Amongst the many and varied projects for residents of this area in its transition to a 70% private: 30% public housing mix. This will enable us to ascertain residents being conducted by the Department's researchers is one with close connections to the community of the Airds-Bradbury Housing Renewal Project (ABHRP) which aims to review the provision of mental health services for residents of this area in its transition to a 70% private: 30% public housing mix. The research will involve several strategic searches of the existing literature, and internet search as well as consultations with health care providers and other key stakeholders in the area. This will enable us to ascertain residents current access to mental health services. The study is being planned by Ron Brooker and the Department of General Practice with collaboration with the ABHRP.

NEPEAN BLUE MOUNTAINS CONSUMER HEALTH FORUMS

UWS has been working over the past several months with the Nepean Blue Mountains Medicare Local, and the Local Health District, also with the University of Sydney's Western Clinical School to engage with consumers in each of the local regions in this area. We are keen to see consumers with a more active role in our teaching and learning programs. The universities are also eager to support research that not only engages consumers, but is lead by consumer and community groups. These regional forums will be succeeded by regional advisory groups feeding into a district wide consumer engagement process that will include both universities through their Departments of General Practice.

School to engage with consumers in each of the local regions in this area.

Whilst the ML and the LHD have been talking about their new structures and seeking consumer input to their strategic planning, Professors Jenny Reath and Tim Usherwood together with the UWS Consumer Engagement lead (Dr Louella McCarthy) have been telling consumers attending these meetings about community roles in teaching and research. We are keen to see consumers with a more active role in our teaching and learning programs. The universities are also eager to support research that not only engages consumers, but is lead by consumer and community groups.
