ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF COUNTRY

An ‘Acknowledgement of Country’ is where other people acknowledge and show respect for the traditional custodians of the land on which they gather. This acknowledgement is a sign of respect and in that spirit we would like to acknowledge that The School of Education and Western Sydney University campuses occupy their traditional lands, and acknowledge the Darug, Eora, Dharawal (also referred to as Tharawal) and Wiradjuri peoples and thank them for their support of its work in their lands in Greater Western Sydney.

We acknowledge the role that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have played across the centuries as the first teachers, academics, farmers, engineers, doctors, law makers and health professionals. We acknowledge and pay respect to their capacity to create safe and welcoming spaces, to share friendship and knowledge; we respect their understanding of the importance of spending time in each other’s company and the value they show us in the importance of shared intellectual discussions and mutual respect in creating communities of purpose and meaning.
Our Indigenous Strategy rests on four key values.

RESPECT - in our actions and words, our teaching and research and our engagement with communities we show our respect for Indigenous heritage and culture, and the rights of Indigenous people to own and control their culture. This includes respect for customs, points of view and lifestyles. We show our respect by committing to learning and understanding the historical context of Indigenous Australians, recognising their accomplishments and the continuation of one of the oldest known cultures and knowledge systems in the world.

COLLABORATION - reminds us that we will not be able to thrive without recognising one another's strengths. This means we listen and grow together, helping and supporting each other in order to achieve our collective goals.

DIGNITY - reminds us of the importance of the belief in the goodness of people and the environment. As we become familiar with the unique qualities of the world around us and understand others through sharing, we build a space for shared action.

INTEGRITY - reminds us that we need to be ethical, trustworthy and sincere in our actions and be willing to acknowledge expertise and admit to our mistakes. We act for mutual benefit which will yield boldness, fairness, and excellence.
